1. 'Seaper Powers' by Kim Cameron and John DePatie

There's a whole new world out there, and it's called 'ebooks'. Although many of us love holding a solid book in our hands, the world is changing and I believe that anything that continues to promote a love of reading in children is surely a good thing. So here's an example of what's out there. 'Seaper Powers' is an American story about a little girl named Emma who uncovers a special power to talk to fish! With her newfound ability, Emma searches for buried treasure with the help of two sea creatures. This story has a lovely focus on enduring friendship between Emma, the starfish and the octopus. The use of sound effects and music is accompanied by gentle illustrations which bring the story to life. Suitable for 3-8 year olds.
