Billy Sample With Keith Collis And Artist Ray Simpson

Retro Sunset happy hour at NYC hotspot XVI Rooftop is fast becoming the 'it' spot. The retro event, catering to the entertainment industry, providing an oasis where guests can mingle & sip on cocktails while watching the sunset over the Manhattan skyline is often co-hosted by celebrity guests.

This week brought on Former New York Yankee Billy Sample along with co-hosts celebrity photographer /Legendary Studio 54 DJ Steve Mack and Indie film star Keith Collins. Warrington Gillette (Jason-Friday The 13th Franchises) sipped cocktails while Top 40 Billboard Recording Artist Kim Cameron from Side FX Mingled with fans & Village People Cop Ray Simpson watched party goers sway to the music of "Macho Man" all toasting to Billy Sample who was all smiles with the crowd. Sample's baseball career, which covered three teams (Rangers, Yankees & Braves) enhanced his portfolio by penning his first screenplay "Reunion 108", with structural help from his producer/writer son, Ian. "Reunion 108" coming to theaters soon, is an edgy, satirical, comedy emanating from the gathering of two different generations of minor league baseball players returning for a reunion game. What happens before the game takes us to places movie audiences and even most ardent baseball fans have never seen for a glimpse of our National Pastime.
