Forty Four at Royalton, The design – simultaneously sophisticated and complex – juxtaposes an icy cast-glass vestibule and brutalist steel and brass furnishings with soft suede upholstery, thick leather walls and hide-covered chairs to create a dark, sexy and luxurious space. Design and architectural details include a mammoth floor-to-ceiling hand forged cast-bronze fireplace, a twenty-foot screen that was once part of the façade of a building in France and hand-upholstered leather walls done in a pattern reminiscent of African tribal art. It's headlined by world class bartenders and cocktails accompanied by a food menu that deconstructs familiar favorites, it's popular bar and restaurant celebrates the longstanding hotel lobby ritual of a traditional happy hour, offering a modern twist on timeless classics.
