What has been the driving force of your music in this New Year?

Funny you should ask! I just completed building out a brand new studio. It's only about 1.5 weeks old, and I had been without one for about 3.5 months, so I was really excited to finish it. The sound is amazing. Super warm sounds. It inspired me so much that I just completed 3 new singles. I will be working on release dates, but yes, a new studio can be an inspiration for sure!

Are you planning to do anything BIG this year for your career?

I am working on movie number two! We are in production now. This sequel stars Vanilla Ice, so I am adding a bit of celebrity fun to the movie. He was great fun to work with. A very happy, easy going guy. I am also working on two new music videos for the new songs. So, yes, busy!

What adjustments had to be made in order to get to that goal?

Don't we adjust all the time? We have to these days!

What personal goal have you set for yourself that you'd like others to think about too?

Well, I started off this year with a friend of mine doing a situp and pushup challenge for January. I am proud to say, I have not missed a day and I am on the last day. But now, I feel like I need to continue it. It's really changed my strength.

Making more moves in this New Year can be really exciting, is there anything that you are nervous about when it comes to your new music? How do you get over those nerves and go for what YOU want?

Oh, I am always nervous that no one will like my new tracks. Pretty terrified actually. Music is so subjective, so what you might think sounds good, may not sound good at all to someone else. And, it's your art, so it hits you very personally.

What chances are you taking in 2022 when it comes to collaboration?

Making movies is always a big chance to take. It's a lot of investment, and you never know if people will be interested in the story.

Name the word of the year for 2022?

I guess, I go by short phrases.....: Come Together

Setting intentions is so important especially when accomplishing your goals! How do you make sure to keep that heart and drive you have for yourself?

I am so lucky to work in the entertainment field. I feel blessed every day that I get to produce films, write music and perform. It fills my soul completely.

What single is dropping NEXT?

Well, trying to decide. I will tell you, the song is called 'Love Story.' But, I think in the next couple of weeks. (I have a hard time waiting.)
